

Ruislip Manor Methodist Church

Sunday 29th November

In the book of Esther a stern decree is issued in the court of the King of Persia. The decree was designed to protect the king from any sight that would upset him. He must not be reminded of how the other half lives. He was to live in his luxurious palace unaware that outside were men dropping to pieces with leprosy, that there were beggars covered with sores, that children were dying for lack of food, that there were women mourning their dead. The incident reminded me of Queen Mary Antoinette supposedly saying in blissful ignorance, 'If they can't find bread, let them eat cakes.'

Esther has to risk her own life to break through that barrier and reveal to the King what is going on in the outside world; in particular that all the Jews in his domain were under sentence of death unless he was to act & get rid of his wicked Prime Minister.

This Sunday we begin our preparations for Christmas: to welcome the King of Kings. But we are aware that it's so easy for us to finish up with our own version of the decree of the King of Persia in which nothing of the real world must enter the gate of Christmas. Think of any of the illustrations of the Nativity, from the Old Masters in the National Gallery down to those on Christmas cards. Usually we get Mary dressed in clothes that wouldn't go amiss on Paris catwalk, & Joseph, the poor lad, with an old man's beard, immaculate in a flowing robe, spotless in spite of the mess of the stable.

'Jesus was filled with pity & stretched out his hand & touched him'. That's what the baby became, someone who out of compassion would touch the putrefying flesh of a leper. In that we get a picture of what God was doing in Bethlehem. Filled with pity, stretching out and touching a world in need.

I realise that the Chancellor has his work cut out to help deal with the financial consequences of the coronavirus, but I agree with the Archbishop of Canterbury, Justin Welby, who describes the move to cut overseas aid as "shameful and wrong". Oxfam chief executive Danny Sriskandarajah said: "Cutting the UK's lifeline to the world's poorest communities in the midst of a global pandemic will lead to tens of thousands of otherwise preventable deaths." Coronavirus will take a much more dreadful toll amidst the poorest countries than will be the case here, but it is too easy to ignore how the other half lives.

It was into this world that Christ was born. 'God so loved the real world that he gave his only begotten Son.' God was not like a Persian monarch screened from the reality of the world outside his palace gates. He was prepared to begin life crying in a manger, and to end his life crying out on a cross. This Advent let us celebrate that love in our own living and giving and maybe even in an email to our MP!

Hope to you in Christ, Roger

Prayer for the nation

You will recall that, as a church family, we use resources produced by Thy Kingdom Come during the ten days of prayer between Ascension Day and Pentecost. At that time we especially focus on praying for five people known to us who do not yet know Jesus.

As England has moved into its second period of lockdown, Thy Kingdom Come is promoting a month of prayer, asking Christians to stop and pray at 6pm every day, working through a seven-day cycle in which each day focuses on a particular area of life:

Sunday - Family, friends and loved ones

Monday - Schools and colleges, children and young people

Tuesday - Elderly, isolated and vulnerable

Wednesday - Businesses, the workplace and economic wellbeing

Thursday - The NHS and other key workers

Friday - National and Local government

Saturday - All who are grieving, and all suffering with physical and mental ill-health

Greetings to Church Friends

The Stewards are very sorry but the Christmas card exchange rack will not be available this year. Even if church could open, we could not take the risk of people gathering to chat and picking up envelopes addressed to others. We would like you to consider sending one greeting to all your church friends rather than a lot of individual cards. Some people usually do this by pinning a single card on the notice board, for all to see.

This Christmas we will try a new way for people to exchange their greetings. We will produce a special edition of the news sheet just for Christmas greetings. This will be sent as a printed booklet to everyone on the church roll, so that nobody will be forgotten. Your greeting can be in the form of an actual Christmas card, a message, picture, prayer, poem, quotation, artwork, or news you want to share. Groups can also send a Christmas greeting if they wish. Please mark it "Christmas Greetings to Church Friends" and either post it through the church letterbox (in the hall door), or email it to Janet newsletter@rmmc.org.uk

Please be assured that if you need to send an individual card and you have not got the address to send it to, the stewards will do our best to get them there. If necessary church funds will be used for the postage.

Please speak to Janet F, Eileen, Andrew, or Jess if you would like more information, or can help with putting the booklet together or delivering it.

All the greetings sent in by Sunday 6th December will be included in the booklet. Grateful thanks to anyone able to send theirs any earlier.

Best wishes from the Stewards Team
